Madrid, August 26.

TH E King continues to give Proofs of his Desire to live in strict Friendship and good Understanding with Great-Britain: For which Purpose, having given all the Satisfaction that Court desired in the Affair of the Assiento, his Majesty has only given Order for adjusting without Delay, all Differences that remain in Matter of Commerce between the Subjects of the two Crowns. As during the Administration of Cardinal Giudice, the English suffered by continual Exactions, and could not obtain Satisfaction upon any Complaint how Just soever, there are so many Causes to be examined and decided, that it will take up some Time. In the mean while the Privileges and Rights of the British Consuls, are regulating on the same Foot they were upon in the Reign of King Charles the Second. The French who are here are very much alarmed, at the seizing and sending to the Castle of Segovia within these few Days, two Persons of Distinction of their Nation, one is the Abbot Violette, and the other M. Montsegur formerly Captain of a Spanish Man of War. Tis said they are accused of speaking ill of the Government, and of holding dangerous Correspondence. 'Twas believed the Ambassador of France would have reclaimed them immediately; but he seems to judge it proper to wait for an express Order from his Court about it. We have Advice from Paris, that Orders were dispatched for recalling M. de Bentenrieder, to be preparing for his new Attempt some Days to an Audience; and Secretary of State said himself, and complain upon him; but the sent back to him, answer, intimating that commanded that nothing be received. The Answer given to the Post

St. Sacrement in America, pursuant to the Treaty made at Utrecht between the two Crowns, meets with great Difficulties. The Proposal made by this Court to permit the Portuguese to send annually two Ships laden with Goods from Brazil to Buenos Ayres, under certain Restrictions, is not at all liked by the Portuguese; so that 'tis believed this Matter will be left to the Arbitration of the King of Great-Britain, in case the two Crowns cannot agree between themselves. All Preparations are made for the Ceremony of Baptizing the Infantes, which will be performed to Morrow with the utmost Pomp and Magnificence: Besides the Proxies of the Godfathers, all the Grandees of the Kingdom will be present; and it being also the Festival of St. Lewis, the Ambassador of France will give a great Entertainment at his House.

Paris, Sept. 1. The Prince of Conty grows worse, the Small-Pox turning black, which makes the Physicians doubtful of his Life. The Affair of the Pope's Constitution continues to perplex the Court as well as the Clergy: All the Archbishops and Bishops are sent for, to be consulted about it. The Court is much incensed against the Jesuits, and especially against Father le Tellier, who is said to have confessed 3000 Soldiers, and made them promise to bear Arms in Defence of the Constitution. The Jesuits cannot forgive the Cardinal de Noailles, for prohibiting their Order, four Persons only excepted, the Functions of Confessing and preaching throughout the Archdiocese of Paris, in which are 450 Parishes; and to be revenged of him in some Measure, they have induced the Bishops of their Party, to lay under the like Prohibition the Fathers of the Oratory, who are generally reputed in France to be honest Men as well as Men of the best Sence, but who have always had the Misfortune to be persecuted by the Jesuits, on Pretence that they are no better than Jansenists. M. de Bentenrieder the Imperial Minister, is preparing to leave this Court, being to be relieved very speedily by Count

Count Kinigk, who is to come hither from Brussels with the Character of his Imperial Majesty's Ambassador. We expect to see the Cardinal del Giudice here shortly, he having by this time received the Pope's Permission to resign the Office of Inquisitor-General of Spain: Tis said he will make but a short Stay here,
and then retire to Italy.

An English Psalm: or, A Hymn on the late Thanksgiving-Day. Being a Protestant Version of the Second Psalm. By Mr. BRERETON. [Whoever reads the Psalms of David, will find all his great Victories attributed to God's Hand, in a Manner extraordinary; when yet they were brought about by great Deliverances are now 2 Days, — and by his History we know that no Misfortune was ever wrought in his Favour. But David's Aspects, — all of Pomp and Amplification of Fancy and Hyperbole, — and ever God is said, in All the Psalms, to do with so much Majesty and Might, is done by human Means and human Instruments in the Minds of Men, of Courage and Experience, which is the Arm and Sword; And therefore the Deliverances that all Men else had from Enemies, both may and ought to be ascribed to God, as well as those:
His Hand is still the Time, His Power not shorned, and our Gratitude as full as it was at David's. Sp. of Ryle's Thanksgiving-Sermon.]
